

Subject: CSWC Operational Period Summary 0600 December 23 to 1800 December 23 2013

WEATHER:

Northern California – Fair skies with above normal daytime temperatures will continue this week as a strong high pressure ridge remains entrenched along the west coast.

Southern California – High pressure will persist over the region through the end of the week resulting in mostly clear skies and gusty offshore breezes at times. A warming trend is expected through mid-week with above normal temperatures continuing through the end of the week. Cooler weather is possible next weekend as a low pressure system approaches the west coast.
